On the Cover:

The gray wolf's revival in the Great Lakes region is one of the most remarkable turnarounds in the annals of wildlife conservation. The Endangered Species Act charted the path for the successful recovery of the gray wolf in Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin. National Wildlife Federation supports the proposal from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to remove the wolf populations of these areas from the Endangered Species list. The Act additionally paves the way for the recovery of the gray wolf in the Northern Rockies. National Wildlife Federation looks forward to both the restoration of wolves in the Rockies and the return of a sense of awe and appreciation for this predator among the American public.
