

EMERGING LEADERS ENGAGEMENT INITIATIVE 2013 EMERGING LEADERS FELLOWSHIPS REQUEST FOR APPLICATIONS

Fellowship Focus: Stopping the Expansion of Dirty Energy

Introduction: The Emerging Leaders Fellowship program is a 15-month program for 10 select young professionals interested in career development and leadership opportunities within the conservation movement. The program is an extension of NWF's successful Campus Ecology Fellows Program. Throughout the fellowship term, selected applicants will be provided with leadership opportunities through NWF and our state affiliates, seed funding for their entrepreneurial efforts, additional leadership and skills trainings, and a diverse support network of peers and mentors. 2013 is the inaugural year of this Fellowship program.

About NWF's campaign to Stop the Expansion of Dirty Energy: Coal, oil and natural gas reserves that remain untapped beneath our soil have the potential to overwhelm our planet with carbon pollution, and irreparably scar our landscape and destroy wildlife habitat. While efforts are increasing in the United States to reduce consumption of these fuels, whether by improving automobile standards or coal plant efficiency measures, the dirty energy market is still growing domestically and overseas in countries with far weaker environmental protections than our own.

Oil and coal companies are moving at a rapid pace to tap the largest and most easily accessible tracts of land in the U.S., and to use U.S. soil as the gateway for Canadian tar sands to reach the global market. To realize these profits means sacrificing America's landscape to feed a foreign addiction to carbon-intensive energy sources. But profits are far from the only thing in play. What's at risk is far more important: Our precious natural resources sustain people and wildlife and are deeply rooted to local economies, cultures, and traditional values. Our rivers, streams, and aquifers will be the first casualties of dirty energy development, with impacts so great that ecological recovery will largely be impossible.

The tar sands fields in the northern Boreal forest, the coal reserves in the Wyoming/Montana Powder River Basin and Alaska, and the Bakken oil fields in North Dakota and Montana are united by a common thread: They are sacrifice zones for the sake of profits for Big Oil and Big Coal, and the resources found there are increasingly destined for foreign markets. These projects destroy America's landscape and lock in a future addiction to a fossil energy economy, at precisely the moment when we must jumpstart massive investments in alternative energy, and as we struggle with the moral imperative to address the largest environmental challenge we have ever faced: climate change.

Goal: In an effort to curb carbon pollution and prevent energy companies in the U.S. from expanding coal and oil development—and related infrastructure— this Fellowship will work closely with NWF’s Dirty Fuels campaign to support efforts to stop new coal mines in Montana, Wyoming, and Alaska, prevent construction of proposed coal export terminals in the Pacific Northwest, and block the expansion of tar sands pipelines in the U.S. Project examples include, but are not limited to: outreach and engagement plans that grow NWF’s youth advocacy engagement around these issues, focusing particularly on the 21-35 year old age group; educating and engaging campuses, schools, or communities on the impacts of dirty energy development; authoring research projects on proposed projects and their impacts on wildlife, habitat, or climate change, or organizing key community groups of key constituents (sportsmen, outdoor recreationists, labor, faith, civil rights and social justice) to engage in public advocacy opportunities such as rallies, town halls, and public hearings.

Fellowship Program Requirements:

- Develop a work plan for proposed project that includes clear, measurable goals and objectives, a timeline, and an outreach and media plan
- Participate in phone check-ins with NWF staff about project status and responsibilities
- Submit bi-monthly project updates throughout the Fellowship detailing the progress made and plans for the duration of the Fellowship via various mediums including written reports, video documentation, photographs, blog entries, etc.
- Post at least two entries on NWF’s Wildlife Promise blog
- Secure at least 2 local, regional or national media hits on the project, acknowledging NWF’s Emerging Leaders Fellowship program. Provide NWF with digital or printed copies of the articles
- Provide NWF with a minimum of eight high-resolution digital action images depicting yourself and your project. Include captions for each photo, names of people depicted and photo release information for each person depicted for use in NWF annual report and other media
- Serve as an member of the Emerging Leaders Council, which meets every other month

Perks and Privileges:

- In-Person intensive leadership training, held August 11-15, 2013 in West Virginia
- Professional development training and networking throughout the fellowship
- Opportunities to represent NWF at conferences and events related to your fellowship, if applicable
- $2000 stipend for your work
- Support in identifying additional funds for your proposed project

EMERGING LEADERS ENGAGEMENT INITIATIVE 2013 EMERGING LEADERS FELLOWSHIPS REQUEST FOR APPLICATIONS

- Strategic and administrative support for your project from NWF staff
- One-on-one coaching sessions with the training facilitator(s)

Eligibility: The Fellows will be selected through a competitive application process. Requirements include:

- Must be age 21 to 35 and not a current, full-time student.
- Commitment to attend the Leadership Training, held August 11-15, 2013 in West Virginia (travel support will be provided)
- Applicants will have demonstrated a commitment to conservation and previous leadership successes

Applicants must live in one of the following states: Alaska, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. Preference will be given to individuals with an existing affiliation with NWF including existing or former staff members, interns, volunteers, or members of NWF, NWF state Affiliates, and partner organizations

The name on the application must be limited to one individual and the Fellowship reporting, training, or other requirements cannot be transferred to or shared with another individual. Additional involvement of other individuals should be noted in the proposal.

Grant Terms:

The Fellowship is for a term of 15 months. Fellows spend various amounts of time on their projects each week. The average amount of time spent is 10 hours weekly or 40 hours monthly. The fellowship project is a labor of love not a job. Fellows are expected to put in enough time for successful completion of their project, but NWF is flexible to account for employment, other commitments, and the working style of each Fellow. Fellows will receive a stipend for their work. Any Fellowship-related expenses accrued during the Fellowship period should be covered by the stipend, with the exception of the in-person training, for which expenses will be covered by NWF.

Fellows will receive a $2,000 stipend. Payments are dispersed in two installments: First installments of grant awards are made within two weeks of awarding the fellowship, upon receipt of the signed grant agreement. Upon receipt and approval of the final report the final grant payment will be released. Grant funds may be taxable; consult your tax advisor for U.S. Internal Revenue Service reporting requirements.
